

A beautifully articulated crown mitred around a key block produces an impressive yet simple architectural detail. This application can be used at arched and straight windows, doorways and cased openings. Also shown is the very traditional stool and apron trimming style. The casing inverted for the apron may be cut down to reduce the width while maintaining consistency. Shown are the AB509 crown and AB137 casing.